A STORY ABOUT COURAGE, LOVE, AND NOT JUDGING TOO QUICKLY

Angel Eyes!

Once there was a girl with a heart of gold. She loved her sweetheart dearly and believed that love would always find its way back. But deep in the shadows, a lonely witch was already watching her...

Based on the story by De opper boeman

The Crystal Ball

The witch could see lovers from far away in her crystal ball. If she thought their love was not strong enough, she cast a spell. Then they were sent to the Shadow World, where they had to find each other again.

The Transformation

The spell struck Angel Eyes, too. Her long hair gave way to a dragon’s head, and her body became that of a floating spirit. Only her beautiful sky-blue eyes remained unchanged. A little golden halo glowed above her head.

A World of Shadows

The Shadow World seemed endless. There were dark valleys, silent mists, and places so black that no one could see a thing. Time moved differently there: one second on Earth felt like twenty years.

Not Alone

Everywhere, Angel Eyes met other shadows. They all looked different, but each one missed someone: a beloved, a friend, a piece of home. Some were afraid. Others were angry because they had been searching for so long.

Searching Together

Angel Eyes realized that no one had to make this journey alone. “We are here to help one another,” she said. “Take my hand. Together we’ll find the way.” Her blue eyes could see through even the darkest shadow.

A Voice in the Mist

As the group walked on hand in hand, someone called, “James! James!” A man ran toward the one he loved. As soon as they embraced, the sky lit up and a path back to Earth opened before them.

The Illuminated Path

More and more lovers found each other. Angel Eyes guided them through the mist and helped everyone get home safely. The women returned to their own forms. Angel Eyes stayed behind, still searching for her great love.

Why the Witch Did It

Angel Eyes saw that the witch was not simply evil. Long ago, she too had lost her great love. In her grief, she had created the Shadow World. She wanted to test love, but had forgotten how much pain her trial could cause.

The Halo Shines

A golden halo appeared above Angel Eyes’ head. Its warm light showed the shadows the way and kept the dark spirits at a distance. “Why don’t you stay beautiful?” someone asked. “I want to save everyone,” Angel Eyes replied.

The Monsters Arrive

The witch grew angry and sent frightening spirits. Angel Eyes protected her friends with the light of her halo. Then the Boegedie-Boegedie monsters appeared: enormous creatures that threatened to devour everything beautiful and colourful.

Her Choice

“Will you save the Earth, or search for your own love?” the witch cried. Angel Eyes did not hesitate for a second. She flew up the stairs toward Earth. The monsters turned the world black, but the lovers found each other again in the sunlight.

The Witch Is Not Alone

Angel Eyes was left without having found her own beloved. She returned to the shadows to stop the witch. Then a tall green goblin appeared. “Did you really think I could live without you?” he said to the witch.

A New Chance

The witch wept and apologised. Her beloved gave her a hug. Slowly, the Earth turned green again. Then Angel Eyes’ beloved came to her, too. He recognised her for who she was, not for how she looked.

Do Not Judge

Angel Eyes forgave the witch, but asked her never to hurt anyone like that again. Sometimes there is only a thin line between love and hate. Grief can lead us to make wrong choices. So listen, show compassion, and do not judge too quickly.

THE END

